

God Pretending

You can answer this yourself if and when you can accept that we are all one. There is only one of us and that one is God.

All the people that you see around you are actually figments of our collective imagination - a strange but true concept.

So, there are no men. There are no women. There is only God pretending to be men, women, animals, planets, galaxies and so on.

The GWB does not judge.

They leave us to have our experiences and feed those experiences back to God so that God can grow in wisdom.

They look forward to the day when we can cease to divide and judge each other and just accept that we are all aspects of the one God.

So, if men have a role in society, women must have access to those same roles - we are all one.
